FORTY YEARS.

The trip which the Emperor has just taken through the province of Minas Geraes, following that of last year into the interior of Paraná, has unquestionably raised some doubts in his mind as to the progress of this empire during his long reign of torty years. It is unfortunate perhaps that his first trips through these provinces should have occurred in the closing hours of so long and so peaceful a reign, and that the practical results of that reign should be brought to his attention at a time when it is almost too late to retrieve the errors which have been made.

In visiting the province of Paraná, his first introduction was to the little village, by courtesy a city, of Paranaguá, whose crumbling walls, deserted buildings and grassgrown streets told the sad story of decadence and ruin. Standing at the entrance of one of the most beautiful bays of the world, and at the gates of a province possessing great natural wealth and a genial climate, it should have told another story. Its streets should have been alive with trade and industry, and its port should have been filled with the white sails of all nations. Instead there was nothing to be seen but the ruins of a more active and prosperous era, the apathy and neglect and stagnation of the present.

Going into the interior, his majesty found nothing but wretched roads, neglected dwelling places and a poor, apathetic population. He saw everywhere the decaying signs of past prosperity, even to the totally deserted sites of populous villages. And he saw around him a people who had lost all independence of character, and who looked helplessly to the imperial and provincial governments for even the most ordinary services belonging to their every-day community life. During his recent visit into the interior of Minas Geraes the same general aspect of decadence and retrogression met his gaze, He saw the lack of public spirit, the total want of individual character and enterprise. Although broken by mountain ranges and covered with extensive tracts of sterile land, he found a great province full of mineral wealth, traversed by fertile river valleys capable of producing the greatest variety of products, and a climate surpassed by but few localities in the world. And yet, the same general appearance of decay met him almost at every step. The roads are no better, if as good, as they were in colonial times, one hundred years ago. The plantation houses of colonial times still stand, but around them the land lies sterile and abandoned, or half cultivated by slaves. The towns along the roads into the mining districts are now but the melancholy reminders of those early days when their streets were full of life and business activity. As the Emperor rode through them he must have seen the deserted shops on whose crumbling thresholds the grass has grown for years; he must have seen through broken shutters the mouldy, decaying interior of many a desolate house from which all life and hope died out in years long since passed; he

are deserted and lifeless except when some blaring political parade or some mediaval religious procession comes winding through them; he must have seen the degradation of their people into whose lives no ambition nor noble impulse ever comes, who toil neither for self nor country, and who live in idleness, squalor, and crime. And with all this, he must have seen the signs of another civilization and another industrial life which ceased to exist years ago, and whose ruins now lie scattered about him.

Within these forty years of his reign there has been an almost unbroken peace. The world has been steadily growing in wealth, and in its instruments for acquiring wealth. The advancement of civilization has developed better systems of government, purer systems of religion, higher systems of education, and nobler types of individual character. And yet, throughout every province of this empire except one, there are seen the melancholy signs of industrial decadence. As in the provinces of Minas Geraes and Paraná so too in those others of the north are seen the mould of stagnation and decay. The rains of another civilization are found even where the ceaseless streams of trade are flowing in and out. In the very vicinity of the imperial capital can be found the remains of agricultural industries which are to-day unknown; and within a distance of fifteen miles can be found a large town, better built than the majority of its neighbors, which is to-day half deserted and in ruins. Instead of a young country just entering into the community of nations with all the vigor of fresh blood and new life, the empire of Brazil shows all the decrepitude and decay of old age. It can not be an agreeable sight to an Emperor whose personal ambitions and aspirations are of so high a character, but the waving of flags and bursting of fireworks can not hide the melancholy sight, and he must now see that there has been some elements in his reign which have not been in harmony with the progress of the age.

It is true that within the past forty years the population of this empire has been doubled and that her foreign commerce has been increased nearly twenty fold. It is true that her political position among the nations of the world is far higher than then, and that the Emperor has won a high place among their sovereigns. It is true that railways have been built and telegraph lines erected, and that a few leading cities possess many of the instrumentalities which characterize a high state of civilization. But at the same time industry has been narrowed into a very few channels, the bulk of foreign commerce passes through the hands of strangers who absorb the profits, and the revenue of the country has been increased from sixteen thousand to one hundred and ten thousand contos, or an increase of seven fold in taxation. These results have not come in with the winds and the rains, nor have they sprung from the soil. They are the outgrowth of institutions which have been nourished and protected at the expense of the nation, until like parasitic plants they crush the sturdy trunk that has upheld must have seen the grass-grown streets which them.

What these institutions are, and what to do with them, must now be the problem in the closing years of a half century's reign. The blight of slavery rests upon the productive industries of the entire nation, and it must be removed. The iron hand of the Roman church rests upon the people, and it, too, must be removed. The wasteful and repressive system of bureaucratic government, centering in the imperial capital, weighs upon the political and industrial development of the whole empire, and it also must be changed. Many opportunities have been lost in these forty years to reform these evils and to build up this empire on a more substantial and lasting foundation, and the empire has unquestionably lost many an opportunity to take a higher rank among the nations of the world. The evils have now outgrown any casual opportunity to crush them and their results are apparent to every eye. It is not an easy task to retrace one's steps and to begin one's work anew, but from that there is now no alter-

CANADIAN SUBSIDIES.

At a meeting of the Canadian House of Commons on March 8th, Sir John A. Macdonald stated that the Brazilian government had formally granted a fifty-thousand-dollar subsidy to a line of steamers which is to ply befween, Canada and Brazil, a similar amount having been placed in the estimates before the House for that purpose as a subsidy from the Canadian government. A company has been formed in London for providing a monthly steamship service between Montreal and Brazilian ports. It is named the "Ganadian and Brazilian steamsnip service setween Montrea and Drazilian ports. It is named the "Canadian and Brazilian Direct Mail Steamship Company," with 'a capital of £280,000. It proposes to at once put four steamships of 2,000 tons each upon the line and, thus earn the subsidy. Independent of this subsidy the company is to enjoy the rights and privileges of vessels carrying mails, in the shape of exemption from port charges and other imposts.

NEW ORLEANS AND THE MEXICAN COFFEE TRADE.

Almost at our very doors, within three days and a few hours distance of New Orleans, lies one of the greatest and the most productive coffee regions on the planet. But a few miles from Vera Cruz, in Mexico, is situated Cordova, which lies within a short mile of the railroad that connects the capital of the republic with the gulf coast. Here the cof-lee tree thrives in a congenial soil. From Cordova to Orizaba, and from one side to the other of the at valley in which the former town is situated, both the soil and the climate are favorable to the production and perfection of coffee trees. In the interior states of San Luis Potosi and Aguas Calientes, Nuevo Leon and Zacatecas, the cofee tree thrives and is productive, but not so much so as in the gulf states of Vera Cruz and Tabasco, and the the gull states of vera Cruz and Taussco, and the states of Colina, Michacoan, Sinahoa and Guerrero, which border on the Pacific ocean. The very finest coffee region, not only of Mexico but most probably of the whole world, is found at Jruapam, a little village in the state of Michacan. At this place the coffee tree attains a size and productiveness. unequaled in any other part of the planet, while the quality of the berry is superior to the best grown in Java, and is at least equal to the finest produced in Arabia Felix. New Orleans is the nearest American Arabia Felix. New Orleans is the nearest American market for the coffee harvests of Mexico, yet thousands of bags are annually sent to Europe and Northern ports of the United States. But when railroad communication shall be established with this country this trade will probably be divided between St. Louis and the Crescent City, while the latter mart will undoubtedly furnish the entire South with this precious production of our fair southern sister republic .- New Orleans Democrat.

"ESSENCIALMENTE AGRICOLA."

After making all due allowance for the differences of location, products and population, upon whichever side thay may fall, there is much of value and interest in a comparison between the agricultural production of the state of Illinois and the whole empire of Brazil. We make the comparison, imperfect as it must necessarily be, not from a wish to say unkind things of an industry here which has had unusual difficulties and burdens to contend with, but from the wish to show what an essentially agricultural community can do, and how futile have been the artificial means here employed to accomplish the same result. There is an erroneous belief, and it is not an uncommon one, that agriculture is not a wealthproducing industry in comparison with the many other occupations which men commonly choose. An examination of the returns of the state of Illinois for 1880. however, must lead to another conclusion Under favoring conditions-which are found everywhere in Brazil-intelligent agriculture is one of the most profitable occupations into which men can enter, not only through the direct returns from the labor expended, but from the low average of risk through terms of years. The enormous value of the agricultural products of Illinois means a large per capita income for the whole population, and in that one result lies the source of a country's permanent prosperity.

In their physical characteristics there is a wide difference-a difference in the favor of the one in location, social development, and tertility of soil, but of the other in extent, population, and in the diversity of its soil, climate and productions. Illinois has an area of 55,414 square miles and a population according to the last census of 3,083. 326. Brazil, on the other hand, has an area of 3.218,750 square miles, and a population somewhere between ten and eleven millions. or nearly six times the area and over three and one-half times the population of Illinois. As between two such countries there should be no other comparison than that of averages and percentages, but yet the agricultural development of the one, and the industrial errors of the other, have been carried to such an extreme that a comparison of aggregates can be made to the great advantage of the smaller and less populous

According to tables prepared by the secretary of the Illinois state board of agriculture for the calendar year 1880, the number and value of horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, and the quantity and value of farm products for that year were as follows:

From this it will be seen that the total value of the live stock produced during the year 1880 was $50,182,654, and that of the various farm products, exclusive of garden products and small fruits, was $206,642,255 making a grand total of $256,824,909. Had an account been rendered of the value of garden products and small fruits, both of large areas of land, this total would have been still further increased, probably to the round sum of $260,000,000

icles which can not be properly classified among the agricultural productions of the country, but as the official statistics group them all together into one item, "diverse products," it is impossible to determine their amount. As there are many small products which do not enter into the list of exports, it may be considered that the two classes balance each other, and that the total given is approximately correct. The allowance of twenty-five per cent. for the value of those agricultural products which are consumed at home will at first sight be deemed too low, but when it is remembered that coffee forms about 55 per cent, and the first six articles in the above table about 84 per cent. of the total export; when it is remembered that Brazil imports all her flour, nearly all of her rice, a large percentage of corn, all her hay, nineteen-twentieths of her jerked beef and dried fish, and very nearly all of such articles of consumption as potatoes, canned vegetables, etc., etc when all these facts are considered it will be seen that 25 per cent. is too large instead of too small an allowance. In addition we have here specified several forest products to a total value of 14,678,208$, which should not enter into a list of agricultural productions.

A comparison between these two results shows that upon a fair valuation the agricultural product of the state of Illinois is considerably more than twice that of Brazil. The state of Illinois has never known the dwarfing influence of slavery nor the restrictive influence of the great proprietorships. Land is cultivated in large or small esta te according to the ability of the cultivator, the great part of the land being held and owned by small farmers. The transfer of property is made easy, and the state provides for the registry and protection of titles, Transportation is cheap and rapid, and is unencumbered with any useless formalities. Labor is honorable and honored, the most successful farmers not only supervising their estates but actually working in the fields themselves. The use of labor-saving machinery is universal. The hand of the government is unseen and unfelt.

It is not difficult for our Brazilian readers to draw the parallel in this case, and to determine many of the causes which have led to the meagre results of Brazilian agriculture. The evils which have weighted upon this industry are principally artificial, and can be removed. It is useless to attempt further to build up a prosperous industry on the system now in vogue; another must be which give occupation to many hands and tried. There must be free labor, free enterprise, individual impulse. The government must do less; the planter must do more. If the Brazilian planter will imitate the example of the Illinois farmer, such comparisons as the above will soon be of the past,

THE DATE COFFEE COMPANY.

A special general meeting of the shareholders o A special general meeting of the shareholders of the company was held at the City Termtnus Hotel, London, on March 14, to consider the confirmation of resolutions to the effect that the capital of the company be £50,000, divided into shares of £1 each; empowering the directors to call in all shares or certificates for shares, and to issue instead shares or certificates for shares of the company of & 1 each: and authorizing the directors to allot and issue each; and authorizing the directors to allot a the shares as they might deem fit. The chairman Mr. Henry Haymen, before putting the resolution referred to various criticisms in the press, and said referred to various criticisms in the press, and saud that, condensed, they amounted to this, that the original patent of Mr. Henley (the English com-pany) was, comparatively speaking, worthless. His answer to that was that the English company had proved that the cost of manufacturing the patent date coffee did not exceed a certain sum, and they ad actually entered into contracts for the sale of the entire make of the company at a price which would, he said, leave a profit of 100 per cent. to the parent company, irrespective altogether of the sale of patents made or which might be made. In reply to other hostile criticisms, and, after alluding to the large sales already of "the stuff," he asserted that Mr. Henley's patent was unassailable. It had been stated that £10,000 had been spent in a fortbeen stated that \(\xi_10,000 \) had been spent in a tornight in advertising a subsidiary company, but the amount was under \(\xi_20.00 \). No secret was made of the fact that when the company was registered the chairman, the solicitor, and the patentee took 2,000 shares each; but that, he said, showed their confidence in the company. The committee of the Stock Exchange, however, objected, and therefore they disposed of some, and the directors at present held about 3,000 of the shares. Something had held about 3,000 of the shares. Sometiming nau-been said about the French company and the Ger-man company. The directors did not intend that they should work in an antagonistic spirit to the En-glish company, and force their produce on the English market so as to depreciate the value of the English company. He had not the shadow of a at the dividend would be a hundred per cent. That was the estimate he made some time ago; but since then they had made one or two dis-coveries which greatly advanced the value of the article, one being that it need not be sold in 1-lb, tins, but could be sold with a profit in tins of 2d., 3d., 4d., and 6d. each. Another and very important matter was that they could now make it into cakes, so that a piece might be broken off, and when put into hot water there was the cup of coffee at once. And, again, they had found by mixing a small proportion of the chocolate bean with the date small proportion of the encodate used with the date coffee and putting it into a special process they could produce the finest chocolate. In conclusion, he moved the resolutions as above. The motion was seconded and carried, after the chairman had replied to a few questions; and at a subsequent meetng resolutions were passed authorizing the directors to carry out an agreement made between the com-pany and Mr. R. M. Hillier, on behalf of the Gerpathy and art. N. at. Times, on behalf of the comman Date Coffee Company, and to divide the purchase-money of £50,000 as either dividend or bonus among the shareholders of the company.

LIBERIAN COFFEE

The director of the public gardens and planta ions of Jamaica, Mr. Morris, has recently lished an interesting work entitled Notes on Liberian Coffee. After giving a history of this variety, and describing the success which has attended its cultivation in the East and West Indies, Mr. Morris quotes the opinions of several planters to show that it cannot be grown successfully under the same conditions as regards elevation and climate as the best varieties of Arabian coffee. Having its home on the western coast of Africa, and flourishing in the rich, fat lands extending from the foot of the hills to the seaside, it is essentially a low-country Wherever it has been tried under cultivation in the East and West Indies it has shown a decided preference for the "warm, moist, and stimulating climate" of the plains. One great thing about it is that although it actually, possesses no immunit from the deadly coffee-leaf disease, it is, nevertheless, able to hear its effects much more successfully than C. arabica, and on this account alone it deserves careful attention in all coffee-growing countries. With regard to its commercial value Mr. Morris thinks it will probably be lower than the best varieties of Arabian, but he states that it is the opinion of experienced coffee dealers that opinion of experienced coffee dealers that "the Liberian bean will ultimately find its level along-side Java and native descriptions selling at about 90s. per cwt." This does not necessarily involve a lower return for the capital and attention devoted to

it. Indeed, Mr. Morris thinks that from its more character, and from the generonomic treatment to which it is amer able, it is quite possible that its cultivation will prove even more remunerative than the high priced varieties of Arabian coffee. Mr. Morris's remarks on the propagation of Liberian coffee, on the cli-mate, temperature, soil, aspect, and shade most suitable, will be of the greatest value to planters.

SLAVERY IN BRAZIL.

At the present time, when the attention of her-majesty's government has again been directed to the ineffectual character of the measures adopted for the suppression of the slave trade in countries over which the sovereigns of Turkey and Egypt hold dominion, it must not be forgotten that "the aboli-tion of slavery," on which popular demagogues delight to expatiate, is, in a great measure, a delusion. There are many countries throughout the world, claiming to be civilized, where this barbarous institution still exists. In Brazil the evil is notorious; and the other day Senhor Joaquim Na-buco-was entertained to breakfast by the president of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery So of the British and Foreign Anti-Siavery Society, at the Charing Cross Hotel, in recognition of his efforts to bring about total emancipation in the bountry to which he belongs. By a law passed in 1831 the slave trade in Brazil was distinctly made illegal. By another more stringent act, passed in 1850, the slave trade was said to have come to an Then, by an extraordinary act passed in 1871, those who were then in slavery were to continue to be so, but all born after that should be accounted free, but for 25 years were to be subject to an ap-prenticeship. According to Senhor Nabuco, private beneficence has far outstripped the attempts of the state to reduce the number of the shared, and thousands of liberations have been freely granted. This is as it ought to be. More depends on the state to reduce the numb er of the efforts of the people than any act of legislation, and the society with which Senhor Nabuco is connected ought to do a vast amount of good in protecting the oppressed and gaining liberty for all who truly deserve it. It is all very well to argue that many of the slaves are fan better off than they could possibly be if they were freemen; but as Cowper says:

"Freedom has a thousand charms to show, Which slaves, howe'er contented, never know."

-British Mercantile Gazette, March 31.

ARGENTINE BONDS AT 82 AND 92.

Argentine bonds are quoted on the London s exchange at, say, 92 ex-coupon, and 12 million dol-lars have been sold at 82, hearing 6 per cent. interest. At the same time, British 3 per cent, incer-est at 993; French 5 per cent, consols at 120 fes, 70 c.; and the United States are able to refund their at 31/2 per cent. It is worth while to underdebt at 3½ per cent. It is worth while to under-stand clearly the reasons why, under such a con-dition of the money market of the world. Argen-tine bonds bearing 6 per cent. are, in the estimation of the Argentine government, worth 82, and in the opinion of the stock exchange, worth 92. It is, plainly, not because the resources of this country are not sufficiently great to sustain confidence in our ability to pay our obligations, for countries, far less able to may have a bitance with less able to pay, have a higher credit. What, then, is the reason for this anomalous state of affairs? In our opinion, the difference between the above quotation on the stock exchange and, for example, the credit of Chile in the time of peace, is the world's opinion of the war-risk and the discrediting influence of an inconvertible paper money. We minuence of an inconvertible paper money. We venture to say that, had we a currency based upon and convertible into gold, and had we a guarantee of peace, our 6 per cent. bonds would be more than 102, instead of 82 or 92. The only menace of peace comes from Chile. In this direction there are clouds and doubt. There is a pretty prevalent feel-ing abroad that we shall drift into a war. While see and confess the gravity of the situation, we we see and confess the gravity of the situation, we do not believe there will be war. This would be supreme foily and great wickedness which we are not prepared to believe the two republics capable of committing, but this the world does not see, and their doubts may be read in the stock exchange quotation. Then, too, we discredit ourselves by consenting to monetary bankruptey in circulating notes that we do not even try to nay and this has a notes that we do not even try to pay, and this has a powerful influence on our credit. Give the republic peace at home and abroad, and give it an honest and gold currency for a basis, and uniform guarnotes for purposes of business and exch and our credit and prosperity would be far stronger than they are to-day. President Roca can compass both ends, and if he does, his administration will stand out in bold relief, and with golden letters will its honors be preserved in honor. Buenos Aires

THE RISE AND PROGRESS OF MEXICO.

The rise of progress in Mexico within the past few months is unparalleled in the history of civilization. A year ago the country seemed to be without prospect or ambition of advancement. To-day it is vocal with hum of industry and eloquent with indications of improvement upon a grand and striking scale. Railroads are springing up. Eight striking scale. thousand men are working on one road to run north from the city of Mexico to the Rio Grande. Seven thousand men are working on another which is to run northwest to meet the Southern Pacific. Other thousands are clearing the pathway, felling forests and bridging torrents for a railway from the capital to the Pacific Ocean. Smaller roads are reaching out into the mining district, the rich agricultural fields of San Luis Potosi, the magnificent dome of Yucatan. In all more than thirty thousand men are at this moment toiling at the structure of Mex commercial greatness, and the iron bands which are commercial grantess, and the foot based while we eat and sleep. Almostbefore we realize it, Mexico will be in fact our next door neighbor. We shall have two or three direct communications by rail, half a dozen steamship lines, daily mail, and con-stant social and commercial intercourse—and all this with a country which, up to this moment, has been more of a stranger to us than Italy or Switzerland.

People discover that the upper classes of the capital are refined, cultured, and polished; that their life is one of elegance and luxury; that their homes are charming, graceful and pure. They find that the Mexicans are anxious to place their country in the march of progress, to encourage the introduction of capital and to promote the domiciliation of the peaceful arts and sciences. And thus, with a start, as it were, our capitalists, our busines our speculators have awakened to the importance of Mexico in the grand economical problem of the gen-eration.—New Orleans Democrat.

RIO DE JANEIRO, MAY 4TH, 1881.

Consta-nos that the State Department at Washington is contemplating the appointment of Mr. Volney B. Smith, formerly consul at St. Thomas, as consul-general at this port. We have no positive information as yet of the formal appointment, but it is highly probable that the new Secretary of State, who has no professional retaining fees to influence him, will soon make the desired change. As yet no news has been received here of the appointment of a successor to Minister Hilliard.

THE latest outcome, and certainly not the most encouraging one, of the present labor agitation in this country is the decision of several prominent planters of São Paulo to send to the United States for Chinese laborers. These gentlemen persist in their belief that no use can be made of the freedmen, hence they are determined to fill their places with the most servile class of free laborers that can be found. They propose to turn away the freedmen to become paupers and vagrants in a country already overflowing with those classes, and they are determined to retain a false and pernicious social system which has already done incal-culable harm to Brazil. The steamer which sails for the United States to-day will take Dr. José Custodio Alves de Lima, a graduate of Syracuse University, New York, who is empowered to contract for 3,000 Chinese laborers for Paulista planters. This purpose is to be deeply regretted, and were there any certainty that Dr. Lima would be successful in his mission, we should look upon it as an event full of certain disaster in the future. Industrious as the Chinese laborer is, he is not suited to a country just freeing herself from slavery. We can not wish Dr. Lima success in his mission.

WITHIN the past month three separate attempts have been made to shoot engine drivers on the railways of this province and São Paulo. One attempt took place on the English railway, not far from Sao Paulo, a second occurred on the Sorocabana railway, of São Paulo, and the third occurred on the 28th ult. on the Dom Pedro II line between Maxambomba and Sapopemba. In the first two cases no one was injured but in the last case the driver received some slight wounds in the head. In the first two cases there is strong circumstantial evidence as to the authors, as the attempts took place in localities where animals had been killed on the track. In addition to these shooting affairs, three separate attempts to wreck trains, by placing obstructions on the track, have occurred within the same perture the institution, as upon it depends primarily litionists everywhere. Hereafter he will

-one on the Paulista line, and two on the North line, both in the province of São Paulo. These dastardly attempts to kill innecent employees and travelers because of some grudge against railway companies can not be punished too severely. In the two instances where there is strong circumstantial evidence as to the guilty parties, the police authorities refuse to take any steps because two witnesses to the act can not be produced. We need not say that all this idle nonsense about two eye-witnesses is a safeguard for criminals which is defeating justice every day. Now that it has reached such a stage that ruffians can deliberately shoot at engine drivers and place obstruc tions on the rails in advance of passenger trains, it is full time that this sentimental twaddle about the sanctity of a criminal's life and the necessity of having two eyewitnesses to the crime, should cease. The law-abiding part of the community also have rights which the government is bound to watch over and protect. Whether in their homes or traveling they should be protected from robbery and assassination by every power of the law. As affairs have reached a stage where six attempts at assassination by the wholesale in the two leading provinces of the empire have occurred in one month, it is full time that the department of justice should wake up, and that someone's neck should be stretched.

At a meeting of the Yoiranga monument commission at São Paulo on the 1st instant, Dr. Ernesto Mariano da Silva Ramos presented the following scheme for its consideration. The main feature of the monument. as it is still called, commemorating the independence of Brazil upon the very spot where it was declared, is a great university dedicated to the purposes of primary and higher education. The scheme, however, comprises several distinctive features which the author presents in the following numerical order: 1st, The opening of an avenue in a straight line from the city of Sao Paulo to the plain of Ypiranga, 100 feet in width, macadamized and bordered with shade trees. 2nd, The creation of a great garden or park, similar to the Jardim da Acclamação in this city, on the hill where the commemorative stone now stands. This garden or park shall have at its central point a column, obelisk, or some other work of art to commemorate the 7th of September, 1822, which shall be of modest proportions and erected by voluntary contributions. 3rd, The four sides of the park shall be composed of four streets, 53 1/3 feet in width. Fronting the principal street there shall be erected a grand edifice of suitable proportions for the future establishment there of a great institution of primary and higher education. 4th, The reservation from the proceeds of the lotteries of not less than one thousand contos as an endowment fund, the income from which shall be devoted to the maintenance of the institution. 5th, The solicitation from the imperial or provincial government of a gift of the public lands adjacent to Ypiranga, with authorization to rent or sell, as a part of the monument's endowment fund. The acquirement of a privilege for the location and operation of a tramway line along the main avenue between São Paulo and Ypiranga, the net receipts of the line to go to the endowment fund of the university. It is desired that the university shall have a faculty fully empowered to confer degrees, but in case the government will not concede this privilege then it should be constituted as a free university, its graduates coming before the official faculties to pass their formal examinations as now required. It is designed to make primary instruction one of the principal objects of the enlightenment of the people. This primary instruction should consist not merely of the alphabet, primer, and four funda mental rules of arithmetic, but it should require, above all things, the acquirement 'knowledge of physics, chemistry, of a natural history, drawing, hygiene, physiology, geography, meteorology, in short, of all the sciences which constitute the art of knowing how to live and to gather the greatest amount of results from the world about us." This eminently patriotic scheme has received the warmest commendations from the people of São Paulo, and was very favorably received by the commission.

AFTER an absence of some months in Europe Deputy Joaquim Nabuco now returns to Brazil and resumes the work upon which he entered with so much zeal ss than two years ago. As the leader of the abolition movement in this country and as the president of an anti-slavery society, his movements have been invested with an importance second to those of no other Brazilian statesman of the day. The representative of a new order of things, a new system of labor, new industry and enterprise, he could not fail to excite interest wherever he went; but as the representative of a party pledged to the overthrow of slavery he inevitably excited not only the interest but the hearty encouragement and sympathy of the most intelligent men with whom he came in contact. The sentiment is gaining impetus daily throughout the civilized world that the time has come for the utter extinction of slavery, and furthermore that as slavery is now confined to Turkey and Brazil the time has come for the use of all possible outside pressure to secure that result. The enthusiastic reception of Deputy Joaquim Nabuco in Portugal, Spain, England and France means something more than admiration for the man and the orator; it means outspoken sympathy and support for the principles which he represents, and sincere encouragement for the struggle to ensue in the near future. And still further, it means that the intelligent sentiment of Europe no longer tolerates the existence of slavery in Brazil, and that it stands ready to render all needed aid and encouragement for its utter extinction. It means that the civilized world is no longer deceived by the half-way measures adopted here for the emancipation of the slaves, and that it demands an honest, efficient effort for their early liberation. These indications of the day should not be lost upon the government, no upon the pro-slavery party in whose hands are now the destinies of the empire. If Brazil is to retain the respect of the civilized world-or rather, if she is to regain the respect already lost, it must be through the immediate abolition of slavery, without onus either to the slave, or to the non-slaveholder. There must be no more trifling with a deceptive and misleading measure for emancipation-an emancipation which leaves to death the breaking of chains, and to the free-born child of slaves the inheritance of slavery, under another name, for the best part of its life. There must be no further enslavement of Indians on the Amazon, no further sale of illegally held A'ricans, no further sale of free-born children into slavery, no turther sale of the "services" of free-born children, and no further torture with chain and lash even to the extremity of death. There must be an carnest, consistent effort on the part of the government to wipe out this accursed disgrace, and to place itself in line with the civilization of the day. This is now no mere demand of a faction in Brazil; it is the demand of the civilized world. Deputy Joaquim Nabuco is no longer the mouthpiece of Brazilian abolitionists, but of abooccupy another position than that of deputy. and president of a Brazilian anti-slavery society; he will occupy a position which no Brazilian constituency can confer. In seeking the sympathy and aid of abolitionists outside of Brazil, he has given the movement and his connection with it an international character which can not now be withdrawn. Heretofore he could have withdrawn from the cause with but a slight loss of local prestige, but to-day such an act is impossible. He must now fight to the bitter end, and in the struggle he will be backed by the aid and sympathy of Europe and the United States. It is no longer a handful of deputies and a local organization with which the slaveholders of Brazil have to contend, but with the wider and better directed abolition sentiment of the whole world.

EMANCIPATION IN CUBA.

[Response by Mr. J. V. Crawtord, late British consul in Cuba, to Deputy Joaquim Nabuco's speech, at the dinner given by the British Anti-Slavery Society, March 23.]

In the eloquent speech of our honored guest, Senhor Nabuco, allusion was made to the island of Cuba, and it may be interesting to you, perhaps, to hear how the work of emancipation is going on there.

The same gloomy prognostications, as those Sentor Nature of describes as prevalent in Brazil, were uttered in Cuba whenever the dreaded question of negro emancipation was mentioned. It was predicted that the abolition of slavery would prove the ruin of the land, and that, without forced labor, the prosperity of the country would vanish. But, what do we see? Although the slave trade ceased in 1866, and in spite of the decrease of one-third of the slave population since 1876, the production of Cuba is now as flourishing as ever it was, 580,000 tons of sugar alone having been exported last year, whilst the sugar and tobacco crops now coming forward are as large as ever.

The first emancipation act was passed by the Cortes in 1870, and is similar to that of Brazil. Slave children born after the date of the battle of Alcolared September, 1868, were declared free, but were subject to their mother's master up to the age of twenty-

This was replaced by a new emancipation act last year, which though very incomplete and unsatisfactory, is producing remarkable results. The mere fact of the Cortes passing such a law has convinced the slave-owners that the days of slavery in Cuba are numbered, and as a natural consequence slave property has greatly declined in value.

The rapid decrease in the slave population has

The rapid decrease in the slave population has been brought about by several causes. First, the reduced value (coupled with the panic of the slave owners) has enabled many of the slaves to redeem themselves; then a large number have been voluntarily manumitted by their masters. Again, in view of proximate freedom, many of the owners have in measure forestailed, that act, by allowing their negroes to shift for themselves, upon a monthly payment of four dollars, which is a great boon in a country where free labor is worth from twenty to thirty dollars a month. Then again, through a decree which obliges the owner to pay his slaves their quota, within fifteen days after the end of the each month, failing which the slaves are declared free, entire gangs have been liberated.

free, entire gangs have been liberated.

The emancipation act of 1880 provides for the gradual abolition of slavery in Cuba by yearly drawings to spread over several years. The first drawing will take place in May, 1885, and it is thought that if the emancipation of the negroes continues as it has done lately, there will be no necessity of going beyond a third drawing, or in other words, that in a much shorter period than that enacted by the Cortes, total emancipation will be an accomplished fact in the island of Cuba. This, however, is much too flattering a view to take of it.

As an illustration that, under free labor, the pro-

As an illustration that, under free labor, the production of Cuba has nothing to fear in the tuture, it may be mentioned that to-day a Chinese contractor, with his sixty free men, will take off a crop as efficiently and with far more economy than a planter could do with two hundred negroes under the old hateful system of slavery, with the lash, and all its attendant horrors.

These facts will encourage Senhor Nabuco in the noble work in which he is engaged, and I heartily join in the welcome you have given him, and in wishing him complete success in his adduous undertaking.

For Mr. Hilliard's ministerial gown, there are various applications. The place is tempting. Rio Janeiro is a beautiful city, full of delight, and the Minister receives $12,000 a year. No man could fill the place with more grace than Mr. Hilliard. He has given perfect satisfaction.—Washington correspondence of Atlanta Constitution.

-The sailors' mission at this port reports that the month just closed was a very busy one, and that a large number of vessels of all nationalities was visited. Besides the religious character of the ork the mission is doing much good in the distribution of books and papers, and in relieving cases of distress. Our readers will not forget that all donations of books and periodicals, and of cloth ing, can be used to very great advantage by the

—The long and unbroken silence of Mr. Resident-director Kip Hopper has led many good people in this part of the world to believe that worthy individual dead, or retired from business. Such, however, is not the case. The circulation of a report in American papers to the effect that the Emperor is so much in favor of the Protestant missionary cause as to offer to pay the passage of all missionaries who desire to come to Brazil, is strong presumptive proof of John K.'s continued vitality.

-We are pleased to announce that Mr. C. P. Mackie has at last secured all the necessary authorizations for the establishment of a telephone exchange in this city, and is now putting up line between the central office, No. 89 Rua da Quitanda and the offices of subscribers. The remarkable success of telephone communication in the United States and England leads to the conclusion that it must also prove a great convenience here. The system includes private wires from each subscriber's office to the central office, at which place he can be placed in communication with any other subscriber at pleasure. The system guarantees absolute privacy between any two parties who are using the wires, thus making it an invaluable agent for instantaneous business communication. The workings of the system can now be seen at the company's

- It is believed that the chief of police is still trying to find the escaped murderer Russinho.

—The Emperor and Empress, accompanied by their suite, returned from their trip through Minas Geraes, on the evening of the 30th ult.

The report that the Emperor is contemplating trip up the Amazon thence across the Andes to the Pacific, is said to be without foundation.

-There is no abatement in the number of thefts and burglaries. The daily criminal record is one which should interest even the chief of police.

-On the evening of the 3rd inst, an assassina-tion took place at No. 154, Rua da Saude, in which a Paraguayan woman was the victim and Manoel do Nascimento Castello Branco was the victor. The assassin was captured.

-Among the passengers arriving on the American packet Colorado was Mr. Richard Cutts Shannon, vice-president and director of the Botanical Garden Railroad. Mr. Shaunon's visit home was an ex Railroad. Mr. Shaunous visit house are ceptionally pleasant one, the more so as it resulted in so many and such high commendations of his administration of the company's affairs here.

-The French steamer La France, which cleared this port on the 29th ult. for the Mediterranean with about 11,000 bags coffee, was unable to go to sea on account of a derangement in her machinery. Her cargo will be transferred to the Poitou, expected on the 5th inst., and the La France will be repaired and sail at the end of the month.

—At a public exercise of Miss Leslie's private school on the evening of the 29th ult., at which a large number of the relatives and friends of the narge insincer or the relatives and irenta of the pupils were present, a diploma was presented to Miss Leslie by Sr. Octaviano Hudson as a recognition of the excellent work accomplished by her as a teacher. The diploma contained a portrait of Quintino Bocayuva and the silver medal presented to Sr. Hudson at the Exposição Industrial Fluminense of 1878.

-After a severe illness of some days duration. M. Paul Delahante, senior, the representative o the French railway company Chemins de Fer Brésil-iens, died on the morning of the 3rd inst. By a sad coincidence his son, of the same name, had died only two days before. These two gentlemen in short residence in Brazil had won a high position in social and business circles, and their loss will be universally regretted.

-Our readers will be pleased to learn that Dr. José Pereira Rego Filho has at last been made a corresponding member of a few European societies. The diplomas all came in a batch, and are invoiced Ine appointa an ante in volcet, and ar involcet as follows: Imperial e Real de Sciencias Naturaes de Vienna, Imperial e Real de Sciencias Naturaes da Moravia e Silesia e Austriaca Geral de Medicina Pharmacia. Kin de Juniur, Airy (II), 1831.

Coffie.—Our last report was on the 2grd ultimo. Since then dealers have reduced their prices about to or reis per 10 kilos, and the sterling cost is further reduced about 1½ per cent. through the decline in exchange. The market, however, has remained quiet in view of the unfavorable advices from Europe and the United States, and only a limited amount of busine and the United States, and only a limited amount of business has been done.

The sales since the 23rd ultimo have been 94,890 bags and the total sales for the month since the 4th ultimo amount to 273,440 bags, the greater position of which is for Europe.

Railroad communication was restored on the 24th ult. and the receipts from that date to the end of the month have averaged 16,289 bags per day.

The daily average for the month of April has been:

10,100 bags per day.

The Rio News

- 1881 -

With the opening of the present year THE RIO News was enlarged to an eight-page sheet, and improved in every depart-ment which experience has proved to be necessary to the inter-sets of a large and influential community of English-speaking merchants and capitalists. These improvements have been advantaged to the

where every effort has been employed to gather reliable infor-mation and statistics and to so digest and arrange them as to best meet the needs of commercial men. In its

the News will continue to report fally the movements and state of the stock and exchange markets, thus making it a faithful index of the year's transactions. The sale of bonds and stocks will be given for each day. It will also carefully note every legislative, administrative, or private act which may in any sense affect the profitableness or security of investments. In its

it will aim to give a fall resume of all the occurrences in this empire, and in so doing will be governed by no private interest or fear. In its news gathering it will seek to represent things just as it finds them: in its comments is will aim to present its own opinions for which it will be willing to be held responsible at all times.

The following are a few selections from the comments with which we have been honored by our contemporaries:

From the Monitor Campista, Campos, Rio de Janeiro

Since its inauguration Ture Rto News has beedome important and useful not only for the impartiality and high standard with which it treats all the topics of the day, but also for the abundance of local and provincial notices of Brazil, and of commercial information of the Rio de Janeiro market, the knowledge of which has come to be necessary to every one in our own country and the United States who would tollow the discussion of public affairs and the news in User. public affairs and the news in Brazil,

From the Echo Municipal, Cachoeira, São Paulo.

Besides the important articles of real interest which we find in the text, it contains an abundance of new items, which are largely devoted to this province. It contains also a special department in which the railways of the empire are exclusively

From the Gaseta da Tarde, Rio de Janeiro

From the Gazeta da Tarde, Rio de Janeiro.

This interesting organ of the Rio press has constituted itself a resolute champion of the cause of emancipation, rendering the most decided and efficient support to the glorious intensive of our illustrious friend, Deputy Joaquim Nabuce. The roar of the interests fed by the immonit traffic in human flesh does not frighten this independent sheet which sees every day an increase in the number of its readers and earnest panegrists. The whole English colony of Rio de Janeiro prize True Rio Naws, and there are already minup Hzazilians who seek it for its very exact appreciation and judicious commentaries on all questious relating to the prosperity of Brazil.

We wish True Rio News auccess and congratulate ourselves in seeing that it fights, with great valor and excellent judgment, to save Brazil, from the disgrace of possessing slaves in the last quarter of the ininteenth century.

The existence of this important organ of the press is a splended proof that it is not alone by the support of the slave-holders that a journal can live.

em the Auxiliador da Industria Nacional, Rio de Janeiro

From the Auxiliador da Industria Nacional, Rio de Janeiro Brazil, which happijy knows what is passing in the European and American social world, ean not however make known what is occurring within her interior and the progress under way, impleled rather by the activeforces of a splendid nature than by the independent effort and initiative of her sons.

From this point of view, we can not fail to render homage to the distinguished editor of Tiur. Rto Niews who so faithfully transmits to the great American Union and to the European world the state of our social life, the political and economic questions which we are now discussing, the administrative and financial life of our provinces, and many other items of news which are worthy of all appreciation because of the descrimination and Judgment which has presided over them.

From the Artista, Rio Grande.

We have already had the pleasure of noticing that important organ of the press which, under the title which we have taken for this epigraph ["Time Roo Neuw"], is published in the im-perial capital, especially deveted to the interests of a numerous and respectable colony represented by the sons of powerful Albion.

and respectable colony represented by the sons of powerful Albion.

The sincere desire manifested in the prosperous growth of the country by all those who so willingly reside in it, is a clear proof that on this American toil, where shines the Southern Cross, they have bund a second montherhand.

The good will bestowed upon our province, in honorable opinions, by our enlightened contemporary, The Rto News, offering to us its most valuable aid in calling attention to what will meet our most vital needs, is without doubt a motive sufficient to have our unchanging gratitude.

In order that we may make due return for the high consideration of our illustrious colleague, we place our limited service at his free disposition.—May 22, 1880.

THE Rto News of July 15, the important English journal published in the imperial capital, is occupied with various matters, all of political and social importance, thus rendering a valuable service not only to the colony in whose interests it is specially zealous, but also to our country, appreciating without passion and with the greatest importaility those occurrences which, through its medium, are to be echoed in the old world.—July 26, 1880.
