Godes-Berger.—Godes-Berger is an effervescent mineral water which flows from the spring of this name situated near the old castle of Godes-Berg, opposite the seven mountains of the Rhine. This water is very pure, being absolately free of organic substances, and is the most agreeable water to drink by itself or mixed with milk or syrups of fruits, wines or spirits. Although not a medicinal water, the use of Godes-Berger is quite beneficial to those who suffer from weakness of nerves, indigestion, gout or rheumatism.

This natural sparkling water is the royal crown table water, supplied to Her Majesty, the Queen of England, under Royal Warrant.

The soci importer and exclusive agent of this famous water in Brazil is Mr. William Rahm, who has established in extensive depict at N. 8 Rua do Visconde do tol Branco in this city.

Mr. Rahm, besides making a speciality of Godes-Berger, imports also a choice assortment of fine Rhine wines, French loquenry, and German additional control of the sandt (Elberfekt), beer, which can not be equalled in this match. It is a pleasure to recommend an establishment as this which sells only the best and purest viands and potables.

Carlsberg Beer.—Since its first introduction.

Carlsberg Beer.—Since its first introduction many years ago, the Carlsberg beer has increased wonderfully in popular favor. This is owing to the fact that it is one of the best brands sold in the Rio de Janeiro market and justly enjoys the reputation of being the best Danish beer made. The great brewery at Copenhagen turns out immense quantities of the amber nectar which finds immediate consumption wherever sent. At Rio de Janeiro, the sole importers, Messrs. Chr. Hecksher & Co., have established a large depôt at No. 1 B Ran Theophilo Ottom, where they serve the continually growing demand for this beer. The Carlsberg was awarded the grand prix at the Paris exposition in 1878. Its fine flavor and its entire freedom from deleterious ingredients render it a delightful beverage and recommend it particularly as a desirable drink in this climate. It has been submitted to repeated analyses both in Denmark and Brazil and the results of all these analytic tests agree that the Carlsberg contains not the slightest trace of salycilic acid or any harmful properties.

the results of all these analytic tests agree that the Carlsberg contains not the slightest trace of salyclic acid or any harmali properties.

South American Advertising and Commercial Bureau.—The special object of this Bureau is to promote the introduction of the latest and best inventions and induce those manufacturers and exporters who have hitherto neglected this market to compete for a share of the trade. Advertising is recognized as a necessity among all successful men of business of the present day. There are many prosperous and wealthy business men in the world who will acknowledge that their success has been due to the right kind of advertising. Everyone knows of some remarkable cases of this kind coming within his own observation. Reference is not needed to the phenomenal prosperity of Mr. John, Wananaken, of Philadelphia, who began business with faith in printer's ink, and whose faith has only strengthened with time. The object of this bureau is to enable the manufacturer or his exporter to reach the trade in the most effective way and to secure the most advantageous returns. That this bureau can be instrumental in serving the extension of trade within the territory of its operations goes without saving. This bureau will cover the four republics of Brazil. Argentine, Urruguay and Paraguay. The people of these countries are as alive to the best and latest in all branches of manufactures as in any other part of the world. Printer's ink has been used with enterprise in Argentine, producing excellent results. Splendid results can be obtained in Brazil if similar enterprise is shown. Paricularly to day Brazil is materially in better condition than she ever was. Her immense crops will enable her to be a large buyer. The manufacturer has but to size this opportunity of securing his share of patronage. Let him herald his goods to the country through its press, the most legitimate and efficient advertising medium. When once he has introduced his goods and has secured their acceptance, it is difficult to dislo there are exhaustless iron fields and coal measures to be opened and developed. These alone will give Brazil an impulse that her most sanguine citizens do not realize. Only recently the iron mines of Antonio Pereira, near Ouro Preto in Minas Geraes, passed into the hands of a company which proposes to develop them. The increase in productions in these different departments will necessitate the development of the transportation systems, and will require the multiplication of railroads in the more thickly settled communities and the building of lines in new territories. The era of prosperity which is dawning will be lasting because this country is vast in extent and limitless in resources.

because' this country is vast in extent and munuess in resources.

There is no better field to-day than Brazil to which the manufacturer can turn for the cultivation of trace.

RIO DE JANEIRO, APRIL 19th, 1892.

THE events of the past fortnight ought to convince the Brazilian people, if they were not before convinced, that the men who have assumed the responsibility of creating, organizing and administering a new form of organizing and administering a new form agovernment in Brazil, are wholly and absolutely unfitted and incompetent for so great a task. To speak plainly, they have not the slightest knowledge of the work undertaken, and are hopelessly incapable of solving even the simplest problems of government. They the simplest problems of government. Insure furthermore, impatient of restraint, insubordinate, fickle, self-seeking and turbulent. Self-government for such men is impossible, for they are unable even to govern themselves. They have no respect for law and precedent, and they are unwilling to allow any right or privilege which conflicts with their purposes. These are willing to allow any right or privilege which conflicts with their purposes. These are truths which the Brazilian people ought to understand and appreciate, for they show us the obstacles which stand in the way of establishing a real republic in this country. As long as these obstacles remain in the way, republican institutions will never exist except in name. They have not yet existed, they do not now exist, and they never can exist. It is idle to pin one's faith to mere names, for it is sure to mislead us. Up to the present moment, Brazil has been nothing more than a military dictatorship, and it is now rapidly drifting into a hopeless state of anarchy. Its constitution, notwithstanding its fine phrases, is a mere fiction, for there has not been a day since its promulgation which has not seen it disregarded and has not been a day since its promulgation which has not seen it disregarded and broken. It is inoperative and dead, for every one of its fundamental principles regarding the presidency, the states, the finances, and personal guarantees, are disregarded and broken. Thus far the effort to create a republic has been a total failure. This is a fact which can not be contested, and which ought not to be overlooked. The questions now arise: What is to be done? If the military authorities are inand which longs hot to be obscious. The questions now arise: What is to be done? If the military authorities are incapable of accomplishing what they undertook, to whom can the people look? The problem is, perhaps, as difficult as it is serious and urgent, but it must be solved or the fate of Peru will be that of this great country. In answer to, the first question we would say: Turn out the incompetent and entrust the government to men of experience, honor and patriotism. The parasites and demagogues who have been proclaiming themselves the apostles of a new regimé, must be supplanted by men whose character and experience will inspire confidence, and whose patriotism will lead them to work for the common interests of the whole country.

And in answer to the second question, we would say: The military are unfit for the task undertaken by reason of education and class prejudices, for which reason the administration of civil government should be entrusted wholly to civilians. As the younger men are also unfit for the work, by reason of interpretations and rash ideas, the younger men are asso until for the work, by reason of inexperience and rash ideas, the proper course is to call back to public life the older men who have proved their fitness in other days to administer the affairs of government for the good of all. The public government for the good of all. The public men of the monarchy were not without faults, and their records are full of mistakes, but no one can show that they ever brought this country to so low a level as that on which we now stand. The monarchy is now of the past, and it may be assumed that no effort is likely to be made for its restora-tion as lown as the new system affords no effort is likely to be made for its restora-tion as long as the new system affords adequate protection to the people and as-sures the prosperity of the country. The statesmen of the old regimé, such as Saraiva, Dantas, Silveira Martins, João Alfredo, etc., may therefore be entrusted with the direction of public affairs, confident that their patriot-ism and experience will be an invaluable aid for the real advancement of the country. One of the most disheartening features of the present situation is the withdrawal of for the real advancement of the country. One of the most disheartening features of the present situation is the withdrawal of Brazil's best and most experienced men from public life. Many of them have left the country in despair, others have withdrawn to their country estates and are never heard from, while others have entered business or professional life and carefully abstain from all connection with political affairs. It is truly a national calamity that this abnormal situation should exist. In view of the important and vital questions at stake—the pacification of the country, the organization of state and municipal governments, the organization of a new system of taxation, the settlement of the many financial problems, and many others of like character and importance — the country should have the counsel and assistance of its best men. Without them nothing can be accomplished. Without them nothing can be accomplished.
These facts should be now taken into serious consideration, and no time should be lost in recalling every patriot and statesman to the salvation of his country.

An interesting problem at present is, what is to be the immediate result of the inevitable liquidation of dozens of the banks and companies that sprung up here, like mushrooms, under the gentle rain of Treasury favors in the time of Sr. Ruy Barbosa? It is generally conceded that the Barbosa? It is generally conceded that the irst calls of capital of these companies were "annexed" by the organizers, and that most of them are now merely paying directors to do nothing, which will continue so long as money is available; after this is exhausted, the banks and companies will never headers their inshibity to conwill merely declare their inability to will merely declare their mability to con-inue, because the shareholders will not meet further calls. Were this all, the disap-pearance of these "wild cat" concerns would not cause one moment of anxiety, but we fear that the most respectable of our financial institutions cannot escape the inevitable liquidation without more or less serious loss. If we are correctly informed, inancial institutions cannot escape the inevitable liquidation without more or less serious loss. If we are correctly informed, during the speculative mania the banks, organized merely to serve as means for individual speculation, loaned money on almost any document that professed to represent value. The borrower deposited his "security," and signed a bill for the advance received; this bill endorsed by the bank was discounted at one of the more respectable institutions, and so the game went on. If this process has really been in practice here, the result can only be that the real banks are carrying an immense load of doubtful paper, the only bases for which are still more doubtful "securities" held by the banks endorsing this paper. It has been evident for months past that subscribers for shares in many companies had preferred to lose the calls paid, rather than send good money after bad, and with the capital realized exhausted by the barpies of organizers, what future can these companies have, or how can the directors justify themselves in drawing large salaries for doing nothing? Nothing is so disturbing to one accustomed to seeing shareholders fiscalize the directors of their companies, than the apathy of the Brazilian in this respect. It would almost appear that having subscribed for his shares, and paid one or two installments, so soon as he linds that he cannot pass his holding on to someone else, he accepts his fate, and merely declines to meet any further calls, to which he cannot be compelled apparently, for the courts are constantly called upon to cite recalcitrant shareholders, under the penalty of having their shares sold at auction! From all this it appears that the company organizers have secured thousands of contos de reis, for which no value was ever given, and, as we have already stated, the shareholders of the large banks are the shareholders of the large banks are likely to be called upon to meet the pay-ment of these sums so iniquitously obtained.

We have so often referred to adhesions, that it is with some diffidence that we approach the recent acts of the government in the matter of crushing the attempted revo-lution here. At the same time the govern-ment certainly deserves commendation from all who desire peace and quietness, and we do not suppose that in offering our tribute we can be classed with the adhesionists as a class. While recognizing a certain necessity for the declaration of martial law, without which some of the suspected parties could not have been arrested, this necessity is repugnant to us as civilians and as republicans, and it certainly created a suspicion abroad that the government was not as strong as it wished to be considered. The promptness that the government was not as strong wished to be considered. The promptness with which civil law was restored, so soon as the guilty parties were out of the harbor, was exceedingly satisfactory. Now that the government has for a third time shown its intention and power to suppress disturbances, we may safely await the re-assembling of congress, to which, according to the constitution, the vice-president must submit his justification for the arrest and banishment of the men who are charged with nothing less than high-treason. It is almost certain that this justification will be accepted by the legislature, for it is asserted that the authorities have closely watched the suspected parties, since the mutiny at Fort Santa Cruz on January 19th, and had collected sufficient evidence to justify action, had not the conspirators themselves precipilected sufficient evidence to justify action, had not the conspirators themselves precipitated this action by their imprudent movement on the 10th inst. This occurrence is happily over, without disturbances of any character, and the conspirators will have time to brew new disorders in retirement along the rivers of the Amazonas. We may in advance deprecate charges, sure to be made, against the Brazilian republicans, in general, as responsible for this miserable business. We are convinced that this so-called sedition was the handiwork of desperate speculators, who succeeded in suborning mutinous army and naval officers, and perate speculators, who succeeded in suborning mutinous army and naval officers, and may even by threats have forced unwilling recruits into their ranks, for it is difficult to suppose that men with former reputations ensained could have freely entered into association with some of the personages, mohase company they are sent into banishment, or confinement. The unbridled lambur of the personages is the property of the personages and the personages are sent into banishment, or confinement. The unbridled lamburght has been wrightenabled and the personages and the personages are personages. association with some of the personages, in whose company they are sent into banishment, or confinement. The unbridled language of certain journals here was intolerable to all, save such as required to snigger and rub their hands over the violent attacks upon the government, the members of which were generally considered to be conscientiously endeavoring to do their duty by the country; and these very readers of the nonsensical rant were probably among the first to appland the banishment of the clowns who had been posturing for their amusement. The fickleness of the masses is proverbial, and in this case it should serve as a lesson to journalists, who prostitute what intelligence a beneficent providence has bestowed upon them, to amorbid desire to attract notice, for they must be aware that they cannot obtain popularity. For this reason, we repeat that we wish to have criticism, which is inavoidable, bestowed where it is due, and blame properly placed upon the shoulders of those that richly deserve it. Do not, we ask our readers, lay sweeping charges upon all and everything in the Bazilian republic because reacters, any sweeping trianges upon an area everything in the Brazilian republic because some thirty or forty desperate, or misled men have made a foolish and wicked attempt to throw the country into anarchy, before it is out of, to speak figuratively, its swaddling clothes.

PORT FACILITIES.

To the Editor of THE RIO NEWS:

To the Editor of THE Rto News:

Sin,—I note several ships consigned to the government, which seem very; baily treated. First they are ordered to a discharging birth called Gambós, where they remain turry or forty days and upwards, awaiting to commence landing cargo, at the average rate of, say, 40 tons per day. They work five and six vessels at one time, and when a fleet of ten or twelve ships accumulate, at least six must wait their turns—which is long coming—and consequently every ship comes on demurage.

Meantime let us see what takes place with these unfortunate ships. First we have in this beautiful harbour several anchorage grounds some of which are considered much healther than others. If so, I consider the government officials are committed an act of inhumanity in ordering ships. Gamas so far in advance of their being ready Changes are considered to the consideration of the consi

The result of such action is that ships are ordered to quarantine. There they gracefully tell you your lay-days do not count, owing to the ship not being at her discharging birth.

It would appear that the object in view, when ordering these ships so far in advance of their receiving their cargoes at Gambón, is that they may be ordered to go through quarantine so as to avoid the claims for demurrage, which we are told they do not liquilate, as we know of several ships having been flastly refused, some of which claims exceeded upwards of fifteen hundred pounds. —The minister of the interior has requested the governor of Santa Calharina to return to the Archivo Publico a copy of the American Constitution, in French, which was a part of the documents in the Tiradentes prosecution. What the minister wants it for is not explained.

Tiradentes prosecution. What the minister wants it for is not explained.

On the 16th our colleague, O Figuro, published a circumstancial account of the recent sedition. The story reads like a romance; Pardal Mallet was to be minister of foreign affairs, a military trimminate was to rule the country, etc.! Our hair absolutely arose at the history.

Hurral! for Sr. Fernando Loho. He has ordered the health department to have a look at the Metropolitano station in the Largo da Carioca, which is said to be a public nuisance. And now let Sr. Rodrigues Alves investigate the whole story of this railway and declare it a public nuisance also.

On the 14th O Tempo says that a telegram from Paris reports that Sr. Botafogo, who was the pet-lamb of Sr. Ray Barbosa, when minister of finance, and appointed by his protector inspector of the custom house here, had been confined in an asylum for the treatment of a "serious nervous excitement." We hope conscience had nothing to do with it.

—An official at the navy yard here has been arrested on a serious charge. A firm of gun-smiths had been furnishing the man with carbines, revolutes, etc., which he stated were for the government. One of the firm happened to ask a naval officer, on duty at the yard, what the government wanted with these arms, and discovered the crime. When the next request was received, the hearer was detained, and when the official appeared to inquire as to the delay in serving his order, he was arrested. It may be conspiracy, but it savours strongly of swindling.

—We strongly advise "A subscriber" to postpose his visit to Brazil and his acquaintances at São Paulo indefinitely. "Is there any danger of taking yellow fever in Santos!!!" Why, man alive, we have been cautioning our readers for months past against the frightful ravages of yellow fever there. "A subscriber" is evidently one of the very few who do not read newspapers. Better stand before a volley from the volunteers at Palermo than venture to Santos, Rio, or indeed any Brazilian port, just now.—Buens Aires Slandard.
